Synopsis

Narrated in the first person, Great Expectations tells the story of Philip Pirrip (known as Pip) from his disadvantaged start as an orphan in the Kent marshes to the improvement in his position following an anonymous allowance. Pip moves to London where, only after many trials, does he learn humility and the value of loyalty. Key Dickens characters abound the convict Magwitch, the eccentric Miss Havisham and the pompous Pumblechook. Anton Lessers abridged recording of this text won awards, and his new unabridged recording also deserves similar praise for its remarkably vivid characterisations. --This text refers to the Audio CD edition.

Customer Reviews

At last, a translation of Rumi's Masnavi which, without ever being pedantic or obscure, is both faithful to the original Persian and to Rumi's teaching. I highly recommend it. This is only the first book of the Masnavi, though (the title is incomplete and misleading) and I am looking forward to the translations of the next five books. A brilliant and moving piece of work.

I have been reading the Masnavi of Rumi in Farsi and since my Farsi is not that fluent, I purchased this book to follow along in the English. It is one of the best translations I have read so far. Of course, nothing beats the original in Farsi!!

Great introduction - clear meanings from readings - interesting poetic structure and rhyme - comfortable/convenient size to carry with you when you travel especially.

Great for my class on Rumi!

This is excellent -- musical and literal, wonderful translation.
